

Africana Religions

A New Book Series from
The Pennsylvania State University Press

AFRICANA RELIGIONS BOOK SERIES

Penn State University Press is pleased to announce Africana Religions, a new book series edited by Sylvester A. Johnson and Edward E. Curtis IV, editors of the Journal of Africana Religions. Adopting a global vision for the study of Black religions, the Africana Religions book series explores the rich diversity of religious history and life among African and African-descended people. It publishes research on African-derived religions of Orisha devotion, Christianity, Islam, and other religious traditions that are part of the Africana world. The series emphasizes the translocal nature of Africana religions across national, regional, and hemispheric boundaries. The editors welcome submissions that examine religious experiences, identities, beliefs, aesthetics, ethics, practices, institutions, or objects, using a variety of methods, including archival, theoretical, literary, sociological, and ethnographic approaches.

SERIES EDITORS

Sylvester A. Johnson
Northwestern University

Edward E. Curtis IV
Indiana University School of Liberal Arts, Indianapolis

SERIES EDITORIAL BOARD

Afe Adogame
Princeton Theological Seminary

Sylviane Diouf
Schomburg Center for Research in Black Culture

Paul Christopher Johnson
University of Michigan

Elizabeth Pérez
Dartmouth College

Elisha P. Renne
University of Michigan

Judith Weisenfeld
Princeton University

QUESTIONS OR SUBMISSIONS SHOULD BE DIRECTED TO PENN STATE UNIVERSITY PRESS:

Kathryn B. Yahner, Acquisitions Editor
kby3@psu.edu

OR TO THE SERIES EDITORS:

Edward E. Curtis IV
ecurtis4@iupui.edu

Sylvester Johnson
sylvester.johnson@northwestern.edu

Initial inquiries should take the form of a 3–5 page proposal outlining the intent of the project, its scope, its relation to other work on the topic, and the audience(s) you have in mind. Please also include a current C.V.